Case Study

17. “The role of a blood bank is never under estimated because, it is having close association and attachment with the human lives. At the same time, here is a poor awareness among the general public about the blood bank and many of there are hesitated to donate their blood and even they are having poor literacy and awareness over the functions of blood banks. So, this is a need of the hour for the hospital industry to build a strong awareness among the general public”.

So, as a hospital administrator do suggest and advise your effective strategies to improve the awareness level of the general public about the essentialities of blood banks and their role.
