Partnership Planning Package

A 9-page booklet on planning a formal relationship between a landowner and a farmer using the land. A joint planning process between the farmer and landowner is necessary to make a successful, long-term match. To assist this process, the booklet raises questions which will help set your goals and ten specific issues you will need to think about. A short outline of three common legal formats for land related relationships is also given. This booklet does not provide legal or tax advice.

Education Grants

LLAFF has some funds available to help make it possible for members with limited finances to increase their farming skills through formal education. Education Grants can fund up to 75% of the cost of tuition or conference/workshop fees. The number and amount of education grants will depend on the number of applications received each year. To apply, send a cover letter describing in detail the course, workshop, etc. you would like assistance with, and how it will benefit your farming skills. You will be expected to provide receipts from your experience as well. The deadlines for receiving applications each year are Jan 31st and July 31st.

Grants/Loans

LLAFF may be able to provide small loans or grants (up to $250) for farmers in need of critical financial assistance. These loans/grants may be used for acquiring materials like tools, fertilizers, and seeds. If the terms of the agreement are met, the money given becomes a grant; if the terms are not met, the money becomes a loan and must be re-paid.
